Judging from the size of the barn he is erecting our friend N. J. Cuff is evidently planning to engage in agricultural pursuits on a large scale this year.

C. U. Moore has declined to accept the principalship of the Benton Seminary for another term, much to the regret of his many new-made friends in Camden.

Under the seductive influence of the warm sunshine and the balmy breeze ushered in from the South, Rev. Arco Robinson and nephew, Allan H. Robinson, went fishing to Burnside Creek Monday afternoon.

Ladies, have you seen Mrs. M. McKee's new line of spring millinery? Her trimmed hats are beauties, and if you can't find what you want, she will trim one for you. See announcement in another column.

D. G. Hudson of Nashville was in Huntingdon last Monday, meeting and mixing with the people. Mr. Hudson is connected with the legal department of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway, and makes that company a good man.—Carroll County Democrat.

Someone with a stout thirst broke into the depot Saturday night and stole a lot of booze consigned to Camden citizens. They made an entrance through a window in the sitting room, leaving a trail of blood from a wound caused by broken glass. Detectives have a clue, we understand, as to who committed the deed.

Marriage License.

Ernest Davidson and Clyde Cuff, Edward Lindsey and Osa Garner, Joseph Noles and Siss Sanders, T. L. Molle and Lizzie Parker, W. C. Barnhart and P. A. Kelley, Walter Miller and Eliza Wyatt, W. T. Elmore and Mollie Brown.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank the family of C. O. Hubbs, the physician and the good people of Camden for their attention and kind service rendered in our sad bereavement. Everything possible was done for the care and comfort of our darling child and grandchild during her illness. May the same kindness be meted out to them in time of need. God bless them.

Those Drunks.

Editor THE CHRONICLE:

Where was the City Marshal on last Saturday night and Sunday? The town was full of drunks, but there was nothing doing in the Record-r's court, we are informed. Where was the Marshal?

Drinking and gambling, too, it seems, are indulged in here every Saturday night and Sunday, but there is nothing doing toward applying the law where it is needed. Who is Marshal, anyhow?

A VOTER.

A Local Need.

Editor THE CHRONICLE:

One of the needs of Camden is a good shoe cobbler—a man who can do good work. One man can not meet the demand that has been made on him this winter, and, besides, his health is not good.

TOLLIE GOOCH.

A shadow of gloom spread over the town when it became known that Tollie Gooch, the young lady from Yuma, had succumbed to pneumonia at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Hubbs where she was boarding. The young lady had been here barely a week when she was taken down sick. The end came Sunday night.

Among the relatives summoned here by her illness were her father, R. C. Gooch, of Senath, Mo., and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gooch, Mrs. Hilliard, her grandmother, R. L. Gooch, Eugene and Rowland Gooch, Miss Blount, Mr. Gordon, R. L. Hill, B. C. Birdwell and Mr. Todd of Yuma and Bill Taylor and two daughters of near Wildersville.

Her remains were taken over to Yuma Monday and given burial. The floral offerings were beautiful, including one from the teachers of the Benton Seminary. Bertram Johnson, Albert Bell, Reuel McGill and Misses Carrie Hill, Irene Fry and Elva Tippet joined the funeral cortege to Yuma, returning that evening.

No one can explain why a young girl, such as was Tollie Gooch, should be called from this life at her age. She had not a thought that was not a gentle one, not one that did not hold all the world in the arms of its kindness. She was the light of the hearts of a vast company of relatives and friends, and the light has now gone out. To her dear grandmothers, father and grandfather she was what the sunshine is to the world, and this eclipse to them brings both darkness and chill.

Vainly groping after the Infinite meanings we cry: Why should so precious, so sweet and gentle a life be taken? The old, old question which will never be answered till the veil of our mortal vision be rent by immortality, and we see—not as now—darkly, but face to face. Then also may we behold the Heavenly mansion which, perhaps, she was called thither, thus early in life, to help prepare a place for her loved ones.

J. F. Pafford, W. H. McKelvy and others are engaged this week in repairing the Camden and Holow Rock telephone lines.
